China vs the USA

United States China Economy war

Published: April 6, 2025

Jack Ma (founder of Alibaba): Over the past 30 years, by outsourcing manufacturing, US🇺🇸 corporations have made massive profits, more profits than the four largest banks in China 🇨🇳 . So where did all the money go? 14.2 trillion on 13 wars and the rest to Wall Street bankers—Nothing for small industries and infrastructure to help ordinary Americans.

So, is it "the other countries" and "foreigners" that are stealing your jobs?

No! It is your own strategy!

That's why the job market is almost dead

...and it will become much worse if it continues this way.

Before vs Now

	USA 🇺🇸 (mid 50s)	China 🇨🇳 (mid 50s)	USA 🇺🇸 (2025)	China 🇨🇳 (2025)
Poverty rate	10-12%	~90%	11.10%	<1%
Unemployment rate	~4%	~24% (Estimate)	~4%	~5%
Population	~170 million	~ 600 million	~345 million	~1.42 billion
GDP	$3 trillion	$62 billion	$27.6 trillion (Estimate)	$43.2 trillion (Estimate)

In the past, the US economy thrived on manufacturing jobs, innovation, and a robust middle class. Today, many of these industries have moved offshore, particularly to countries like China, resulting in the hollowing out of manufacturing in the US. Initially, the idea of outsourcing was to reduce costs, so then, while counties like China and Philippines were doing the cheap manual labor, AKA modern slavery, the west was earning 10x money for each item sold. This way the West could focus more and more on "innovation" and thriving on the "knowledge economy".

However, this was just a nice imagination. When the West detached itself from the hardworking jobs needed in some parts of the supply chain, their society began to enjoy the "easy luxury life" that they could afford thanks to these high profit margins, the financial system that could give them the chance to "just print money", and also resources that they could steal from other countries, like Iraq, Afghanistan, and Libya.

This "easy life" was not sustainable, and now the West is facing the consequences of this strategy. Now, the US and Western allies are highly depended on China, India, and Philippines, and almost nothing can be produced without them. Also, now that with the power of AI, most digital jobs are being replaced, people are losing their jobs one after another. The top 1% is still enjoying even a higher margin of profit, because they don't need to hire as many people as before. The middle class is shrinking, and the gap between the rich and poor is widening. For those who have lost their jobs, the situation is dire, as they are left with much fewer options.

Meanwhile, China has made major strides in high-tech industries, moving from being just a manufacturing economy to one focused on innovation and technology development. China's growth in AI, renewable energy, and telecommunications has helped build a more modern and competitive economy. So now, China is strong in both traditional and modern industries, while the US is struggling to keep up with the pace of change.

The wars the US was involved in directly

The US has been involved in several direct military interventions over the past decades. These include the Persian Gulf War (note: it has always been Persian Gulf, even though Israel and the US are trying to rename it similar to what they did to Palestine), Iraq War, and the War in Afghanistan. According to estimates, the US has spent over $14 trillion on wars since 2001. These wars drained resources that could have been used to bolster domestic infrastructure, healthcare, and education. Instead, they resulted in an unstable Middle East, loss of life, and limited benefits for American workers. The costs of these wars have placed a massive strain on the US economy while enriching defense contractors and military-industrial complex stakeholders.

The wars Israel was involved in (US-backed money)

Israel, as a close ally/owner of the US, has been involved in several conflicts, including wars with neighboring countries and brutal invasions in Gaza to ethnically remove the Semites of the Middle East from existence and to replace them with Antisemitic Ashk-e Nazi Western-Zio-supremacist of Izrael who think they are superior to Semites of Palestinians, Lebanese, and Iranians.

These wars have been heavily funded by US aid, with the US providing Israel with over $3 billion annually in military assistance. This financial support has been used not only for defense but also for expanding settlements, occupying people's homes, and militarizing the region under the colonial rule of the Zio-supremacist t3rrorist regime.

These wars have contributed to instability in the Western parts of Asia (Middle East), creating all those extremest groups like ISIS (which is known to have been created by Mossad and CIA, so then it could be used as an excuse to justify their genocides) while strengthening the military-industrial complex in both the US and "Israel" (Western-occupied Palestine). Good business for those cults who own these private military contractors and arms manufacturers.

The wars NATO was involved in (US-backed money)

NATO, led by the US, has been involved in several conflicts, most notably the intervention in Yugoslavia, the war in Afghanistan, and the ongoing conflict in Libya. These interventions, have cost billions of dollars in addition to the geopolitical consequences. The wars have destabilized regions, led to mass migrations, and diverted US/UK/Europe resources from addressing domestic issues. So, who was to benefit from all those NATO-led operations and wars? Defense contractors, politicians, and international Mafia-like gangsters who profit from the chaos and instabilities. Those who believe in the "ordo ab chao" (the order of chaos).

The top 1% rich Americans

The top 1% of rich Americans have seen their wealth grow exponentially over the past few decades. According to reports, the wealthiest individuals have accumulated more than 40% of the nation's wealth, while wages for the middle class have stagnated. The increase in inequality, which is a result of policies that prioritize corporate interests over workers' rights and wages.

In addition, by pumping US dollars into the global economy, the US government has reduced the value of USD and increased inflation, which has disproportionately affected the middle class and low-income families. The Federal Reserve's policies of low interest rates and quantitative easing have led to asset bubbles, making it difficult for ordinary Americans to afford homes and save for retirement. The result is a growing divide between the wealthy elite and the rest of the population, with many Americans struggling to make ends meet while the rich continue to amass wealth.

Who owns the new USD-backed banking system?

The USD-backed global banking system is largely controlled by a few major financial institutions, including the Federal Reserve, large multinational banks, and financial elites. These institutions are responsible for creating and managing the flow of money globally. This system disproportionately benefits the wealthiest individuals and corporations, leading to financial instability and inequality. The recent banking crises, such as the 2008 financial crash, demonstrate the vulnerabilities of this system, where the rich are often bailed out, while ordinary people bear the brunt of economic downturns.

Israel's lobby who wants more and more wars...

Israel's political lobby in the US has played a significant role in influencing US foreign policy in the Middle East. This lobby has advocated for military support and intervention in conflicts that serve Israel's colonial interests. While the US politicians (puppets of those Zio-Mafias) pretends that these actions are necessary for national security, this influence has led to unnecessary wars and military spending that have drained US resources. The push for military intervention and regime changes in countries like Iraq and Syria has been partly fueled by the interests of this lobby, who was not happy with JFK, created ISIS, and is now pushing for more and more wars.

The bubble that burst in 2008

The 2008 financial crisis was a result of reckless banking practices, mortgage-backed securities, and deregulation of the financial sector. While the US was enjoying the illusion of this new enslavement economic growth, and was pumping almost unlimited amount of money into the system, finally the bubble burst and the housing market collapsed.

The burst of this bubble led to widespread economic fallout, resulting in millions of lost jobs, foreclosures, and the loss of trillions of dollars in wealth. The US government responded with massive bailouts for banks and corporations, which sparked outrage from the public, as the wealthiest institutions were protected while ordinary Americans suffered. The aftermath of the 2008 crisis demonstrated the fragility of the financial system and the impact of policies that prioritize the benefit of those rich and powerful Mafia of bankers.

Brexit was engineered by the elite to leave Europe behind and to make the US and UK closer. The UK was not interested in potential war with Russia and also was unhappy of the fact that Europe was pushing back the US harshly with things like GDPR and the EU's Digital Markets Act, which were mainly used to fine American big tech companies. Even though that was kinda successful, Europe failed making its own sovereign technologies and fall way behind bigger players like China and the US. This mainly happen due to the general European "take it easy mindset" in which people are not willing to work hard and to take risks. Also, the lack of talent and openness to diversity lead to failing to attract those who could help them keep the pace with the US and China.

Russia and Israel's invasions

Russia's recent actions in Ukraine and Israel's genocide in Gaza have further complicated the geopolitical landscape. Russia's "operation" in Ukraine in 2022 made the US and Europe be involved in a proxy war, spending billions of dollars on military equipment and bombs. Meanwhile, Israel's ongoing brutal genocide in Gaza opened many people's eyes and woke them up to see the reality. Both of these conflicts cost Western allies billions of dollars and loss of jobs.

Meanwhile, China ...

Meanwhile, in the past twenty years, especially after 2019, China invested in AI, high-tech, and domestic talents. China has emerged as a leader in fields like AI, quantum computing, and green technologies. Unlike the US and NATO allies, which has focused on military interventions and invading other countries to steal their resources, China concentrated on building a sustainable and competitive economy. The Chinese government's focus on research and development, combined with significant investments in education, has made the country a global hub for innovation. This strategic shift towards technology and self-reliance has allowed China to bypass many of the pitfalls that have hindered other nations' growth.

Remember...

The definition of "allies" has already changed. Brexit🇬🇧 didn't happen for no reason! It represents a shift in power dynamics and the redefinition of alliances, both economically and geopolitically. Western countries are reevaluating their relationships, with some questioning the value of staying in long-standing agreements while others seek new partnerships with emerging global powers, particularly China.

We learned media has told us lies after lies to brainwash us believe that the West is the best and China, Iran, Russia are just a few 3rd word evil countries. We learned how Zionists have dehumanized Palestinians to justify their horrible war crimes.

😂 for having thought like this and written this article. I guess whoever talks against Western propaganda is easily marked with such labels, right? This is how people are socially terrorized and silenced in the West by those who don't want us to see the reality! (RIP freedom of speech 🪦)

What I've learned so far, as a person who has lived in Iran and Denmark for many years, and have seen many different countries at least in Europe, I can confidently say that that Western propaganda is much stronger than the alternatives. That's why even I used to believe a lot of propaganda from all those US/UK/Israeli-backed Farsi channels about my own country vs the West which is far different from reality. Interestingly all those "Farsi" channels are free to watch with no ads, while even in the UK or Denmark people pay for watching their national TV.

As an Iranian who has listened, read, and watched, and gathered information from many different sources for years, I can confidently say that all those US/UK/Israeli/Saudi-backed media (for example: VoA Farsi, Iran International, and ManoTo TV) are just pro-Pahlavi pro-dictatorship anti-democracy anti-reformists anti-Iranian propaganda machine that are established to brainwash my generation and those of us who sacrificed our lives for empowering the right of voting, democracy, equality, and freedom of speech.

Yes, in Iran we have poor people in villages. Yes, in China they have poor people in villages. And yes no country can be marked as "ideal", but all these things exist everywhere, not just in China, Iran, or whoever we are programmed to dislike! That's why Antisemitic Israelis hate Arabs so much that they proudly kill Semites of Palestine and steal their lands. That's why they have killed tens of thousands of innocent Palestinian children.

I personally watch and read from different sources and talk to people (when I don't have the chance to live in that country), to have a better understanding of the reality, and I encourage you to do the same.

I watched a few more videos from that YouTube channel (serpentza), and here is my opinion (right or wrong):

- Some of the things he says are just ridiculous in a propaganda fashion ("poisoned vaccine jabs for kids" 😂 , etc.)
- If you want to compare large Asian countries (like China or even Iran), you should compare them with something of their size, for example, Europe. Some visit Iran or China, go to poor cities/villages, find the worst things happening in the country, and "brand it" as if THIS IS CHINA. - for example, in one video, he shows prostitutes like they only exist in China 😂 ; What is the prostitution rate in poorer European parts like Ukraine or Romania?
- Corruption in the police and courts (we have it in Iran, too): but is it only for Asian

- He argues that “police were checking him for saying bad things about China” (or whoever should be marked as “enemy” to be hated by the public) + he keeps repeating similar things in other videos => see what is being done to me, as a random person living abroad” for just saying a few words and having written a few articles about Israel and how Denmark is for a non-European “none-white-enough” foreigner like me (legally and socially).
- He says "China is not equal for foreigners compared to locals" => In Denmark, even though I pay the same tax, why shouldn’t I have a European Health blue card? Why shouldn't I be covered if something happens to me in Spain? Just because I am not a European citizen? (I can talk about these inequalities for hours. In short, we are living in an era when being an Iranian is illegal, similar to what it was for some during the time that Hitler was ruling over Germany.
- He says “China is poor” - like no one is living on the streets in the States. The kind of propaganda that doesn’t want its viewers to see the fact that China moved from an almost 99% poverty rate to less than 1%.
- He says: “the gap between rich and poor in China is so large that it makes you whiplash”; like in the US, everyone is equal! 😂
- I love the fact that he begins one of his videos with this: “I was a young white man from South Africa with fewer opportunities”, pretending that a “white man” is of fewer opportunities in an apartheid state 😂 This guy has the same drama queen style as Westerner Israelis who have invaded Palestinians and slaughtered them throughout decades and now are playing the victim.
- When such a level of propaganda exists against your country (there is a lot of paid propaganda against my country at least, and I can name some, so I guess a similar thing should exist for China), then the wisest move is to fight back. Otherwise, your people will become similar to the younger version of me who fall into the trap of all those anti-Iranian propaganda, which I realized later was 100% bullshit.
- For religion (China and North Korea are kind of anti-religious, not just secular to accept others, but to be against), yes, not every place is ideal, and bad things exist everywhere. For example, if you are a Muslim, you have absolutely no rights in Israel, or even if you are a Christian, people will spit on your face in some areas (I have watched many leaked videos of it), and you can’t do anything about it (I have seen Westerners going there to support Israel and this happened to them and they couldn’t do anything about it + were kicked out for just mentioning it). In Iran, we also don’t have 100% equality for religions. Still, most such things are just lies and propaganda, so I’m not sure how much of this is true for China. Still, even if it is true, it exists in Israel (occupied

- For the video with this title: “It’s Murder Season in China” or “Revenge Attacks! China's Mass Stabbing Crisis”:

In Iran, we also have some Western-backed terrorists who attack civilians, some examples: Iraqi-backed “Kurdish” separatists who attack Kords of Iran (Kords have always been an essential part of Iran. - Then we lost a few parts of that region to Turkey and what is now called Iraq and now they are being trained/armed to constantly attack the border with Iran + sometimes find ways in throughout mountains to kill civilians and spread fear), Pakistani-Balouch armed “separatists” who attack Balouchs of Iran living in the poorer, unsafe border that we have near Pakistan, MEK Mujahhedin Khalgh (which is a terrorist organization, helped Saddam Hussein against Iran, has killed thousands of Iranian civilians, used to be in Iraq and now lives in Europe), another terrorist group that was close to Reza Pahlavi and bombed a place in Iran and proudly talked about it on TV!!! (the leader of that terrorist organization was living in Germany), and a few more. Interestingly, most of these groups are backed by Israel and Western allies (similar to Joulani, an ISIS leader who was trained and sent to destroy Syria). - in China they probably have that kind of problem, too. I donno. (culturally, that part of Asia has always also been racist and intolerant about others, and they even openly proudly say how “white” they are, meaning how “better” they think are 😂 which is what I don’t like, but we also have some in Iran who also say those stupid things like Iranian Persians are the Aryans and are superior to others, which is the theory that Hitler was also using => that’s why a few hundred thousand of them have moved to Israel in the past 50-60 years to join them ethnically “cleanse” Semites/Arabs due to this hate-based mindset) + there was a terrorist attack in Copenhagen 2 years ago (shooting) but no one knows anything about it outside Denmark, just because it was a white male Dane who killed others, and ofc if that’s the case, it should be a “lone wolf with the mental issue” 😂 -> so not much news coverage outside a few lines written on DR (in Danish) - even his “logic” is awesome: he says if you don’t agree with what I say “go fuck yourself 😂 ”

- Again, of course, China is not ideal from the “freedom of speech” perspective (Iran too), but similar things exist in the West under different names. Here, you will be “labeled” or socially terrorized to choose silence, or if something serious happened (similar to the white Danish terrorist who attacked people in a supermarket in Copenhagen), then it will not be appropriately covered in international news unless the attacker is someone that society should hate (Arab, Muslim, Chinese, whatever)
- “People are Collapsing Spontaneously all over China! Why?” I love that a South African of British origin has moved to another country and is criticizing their law after moving out of it 😂 but is silent about his own country and the one that he now lives in!
- “remember the grab hags” (he says that in one of his videos) - I’ve seen many of those “top to down” facked-up haters talking about my country just because in a small part of the country (due to their culture or just being poor like many other countries like Romania, etc in Europe - again you should compare China with Europe, not just a small shiny country like DK), and I’m sick of people with that kinda sick mindset as if this is “what people are expected to brag about in the West”

- “China's Psychopathic Little Emperors” - when I saw what is happening in Israel and the level of psychopathic brutal killings that is still praised by the West, now nothing can lecture me about the moral and standards. China is on the right path to educating society to respect others better. Yes, similar to Japan and other traditional societies, Women had fewer rights in the past, but now they are on the right path to improve it. And also, remember, for example, they say ohhh in Iran women have no rights😂 , while we have more female engineers and managers running the country (at least in IT and high-tech jobs) even after those conservatives took power! Kids in Denmark are also raised like gods with an absolute right to do whatever they want (even though here, people have 1-2-3 kids with each partner, meaning some Danes have 5+ kids just because it’s “free”!-this is common in Arab culture too, similar to Denmark). That’s why the education system fails (for example, when they exclude Arabs or whoever has black hair) then they join gangs from early age and do all these illegal things without anyone doing anything about it.
- “China’s Bizarre Spit Fighting Explained” this one reminded me of the videos from Israel where I could see locals spit on random Christians/Muslims/blacks just because of their religion or ethnicity (not being white). I guess it’s the same shit that one the West applauds for (Israel) and another one is used to feed our brains to hate China.

I was raised under the influence of such Western-backed propaganda, and it took me years to finally wake up and understand. This guy doesn’t seem to be a “random person” who happened to have moved to China and was kicked out (while he says his partner was arrested for being a spy). The way that he keeps repeating a few keywords like “communist party” (which is what the majority of us don’t like - I don’t like communism too) is how someone deliberately wants to spread propaganda and is a technique to brainwash people (keep repeating what they are already afraid of). Interestingly, 1.5 million people are subscribed to his channel to watch such obvious propaganda.
