song music Israel Iran war

Bombs vs brains, on YouTube:

(Intro – spoken softly, with ambient sounds)

They said: Zan, Zendegi, Azadi — and cheered.

Then cheered the bombs that killed those women.

They praised our minds, then silenced them.

You called it peace... but we remember.

(Verse 1 – beat builds)

They built their war on secret lies,

Shot down stars from Persian skies.

Men of minds, sharp as light,

Silenced forever in dead of night.

No court, no trial, just a drone,

While you just tweeted, scrolled your phone.

They called them threats — but they taught math,

Their only weapon? A scientist's path.

(Chorus – chant/drop)

You called it peace, we call it shame,

You bomb the wise, then twist the name.

Justice fades when truth is banned,

A child is a child — no matter the land.

(Chant repeat – low synth)

No to war, no to hate!

Brains and books, not a state!

No to lies dressed as pride,

Zan, Zendegi — but they died.

(Verse 2 – rhythmic, faster)

Now kill them silent, without a face.

Engineers, not holding guns,

Killed for dreams they'd just begun.

You cried for us in '22,

But now your silence burns right through.

You helped the worst to rise again,

Made tyrants stronger with your friend.

(Bridge – emotional, build tension)

Germans — they did the same,

Killed Poland's best and wore no shame.

Now you repeat what you condemned,

When Israel strikes, do you defend?

A bomb on knowledge, a hit on grace,

They murder minds and erase their face.

You say it's "justice" — we say it's fear.

Because genius lived — and genius was near.

(Breakdown – whispered)

You feared what they could write,

What truth they'd teach, what wrong they'd right.

(Chorus – big drop)

You called it peace, we call it war,

They died for what they stood before.

A voice, a spark, a question asked —

For that alone, their lives were masked.

(Chant repeat – intense)

We won't forget how silence dies.

Zan, Zendegi — not a trend,

You don't support us — just pretend.

(Outro – haunting echo)

A child is a child...

A mind is a flame...

You killed the light...

But not the name.
